Summary

Whether working with my students, teaching myself an instrument, or learning new coding and programming languages, I believe that with time and dedicated practice, anything is possible. Performing in bands throughout my life has taught me the values of collaboration and succeeding as a team.

With a history in education and a lifetime of studying music, I am a passionate and dedicated learner who believes in using the creative mind to figure out solutions and solve any problem I face. Striving to bring together my interests in technology and my love for learning, I am seeking a software engineering position where growth, development, and collaboration are valued, that I may let these traits shine.
